Habitat Build Days

FAQs

What is a Habitat Build Day?

A Habitat Build Day is a special day set aside for your business or group to spend the day volunteering on the Habitat Construction Site. It is a unique opportunity to work with the construction crew, learn about Habitat, meet Habitat homebuyers, and be a part of building affordable housing in Tuolumne County!

Who can participate?

Anyone over the age of 16 can participate! There is absolutely no construction experience required and there are a wide range of volunteer opportunities for every skill and ability level.

Why does it cost so much?

When you donate to Habitat for Humanity, we want you to be a part of the mission of building affordable housing. We want you to feel connected to the process of building a house and understand how your donation is benefiting your community. So, a Build Day is our opportunity to demonstrate to you where your donation is going and it is a way for you to connect your donation with the people you are helping.

Also, a build day is much more than a day to volunteer at Habitat – anyone can volunteer at any time. A Build Day is a day set aside to build with your group, making it a fundraising event, more than just a day of volunteering.

Can anyone host a build day?

Any group can get together to have a Build Day! If you can get your business or group to raise the money, we would love to put your Build Day on our calendar.

What kind of recognition does my company receive for hosting a Build Day?

Please see the attached Build Days Benefits page for the full list of how Habitat recognizes your support.
